The Official Partners The Key to Success

The Olympic Winter Games in Lillehammer would not have been possible had it not been for the support of its national and international partners. Large and small companies supplied quite varied but equally important services to make Lillehammer '94 a success. LOOC's Official Partners were organized into three groups: the national sponsor programme Team Birkebeineren, the international sponsor programme TOP III and the Official Suppliers for the Games. These were the companies which made the XVII Olympic Winter Games possible.

The agreement between LOOC and the nine Team Birkebeiner members ensured close cooperation both in terms of the planning and staging of the Games. In addition, LOOC received an income of approximately NOK 550 million from the programme.

ABB: Installed electrical equipment and mounted ventilation, freezing and air-condition systems.

IBM: Supplied computer equipment and system support for the results and information systems. Two parallel mainframes were in use, as were 2,250 PS-2 computers, 250 printers and several UNIX machines. Approximately 100 IBM employees were engaged in the IBM Olympic project.

Norway Post: Organized the Torch Relay which visited every county in Norway. The Torch Relay, involving more than 8,000 torch bearers, was 12,000 km long. Norway Post was responsible for mail services during the Games and issued Olympic stamps.

Procordia: One of Scandinavia's largest companies – was split up in 1993. Foodstuffs and other consumption items were transferred to BCP, while medicaments and biotechnology were grouped in Pharmacia. Partena Cater served 4.5 million meals during the Games, and had 3,000 employees involved. Hansa, Bjellands and Ramløsa are popular trademarks in Norway.

Sparebanken NOR (Union Bank of Norway): Norway's third largest bank and official Olympic Bank. The Bank processed all Olympic receipts/payments, was responsible for national ticket sales, and provided much of the financing for Olympic projects. The bank supplied ATM-machines, extended banking hours, opened four new offices, and offered a bank-bus service.

TBK ensured that three million telephone calls, 1.5 million radio calls and 100,000 pagings were carried out smoothly during the Games. The company delivered 15,000 telephones, 1,000 km cable, 2,500 closed circuit cellular phones and 1,400 pagers. 200 TBK employees were involved in the company's Olympic project.

Norwegian Telecom: Responsible for the public telephone network and for ensuring that television signals reached the rest of the world. 550 Norwegian Telecom employees were involved in the most advanced "tele-Olympics" ever. The company's investments will benefit the Olympic Region also after the Games.

Volvo: Played a key role in solving Norway's greatest transport challenge. The company supplied 1,300 vehicles for the transport of 40,000 accredited persons, and buses with chauffeurs for public transport. LOOC had 150 Volvo cars at its disposal.

STATOIL

Statoil: Supported the Games financially, and also supplied the oil and gas for the Games. Within the company, Statoil used the Olympics in the company's motivational training programme – Statoiliaden – related to the environment and security.

TOP (The Olympic Programme) is an international sponsor programme for the Olympic Movement. The seven international members of TOP are experienced Games' sponsors, and provided products and expertise critical to the success of the Lillehammer Games.

Coca Cola: Has been an Olympic sponsor since 1928, was the main sponsor for the 1952 Olympic Winter Games in Oslo, and was the official supplier of soft drinks to the Lillehammer Games. Coca Cola provided free soft drinks for everyone who worked at the Olympic venues.

Kodak: Official photographic sponsor of Lillehammer '94. Kodak delivered the photographic equipment for accrediting 50,000 persons during the Games. The company also offered extensive professional developing services to 600-650 photo-journalists, and operated two film-developing centres in Lillehammer and Hamar. In all, 700,000 films were developed during the Games.

VISA: Official credit and payment cards for the Lillehammer Games. Visa was the only card accepted for payment at the Olympic venues, and the only card that could be used in the payment terminals at the venues, or for cash withdrawal at Sparebanken NOR's branch offices.

Bausch & Lomb: The world's largest producer of contact lenses also makes dental products and Ray Ban sunglasses. The company made its own Lillehammer '94 sunglasses. During the Games, B&L operated a vision centre for the athletes in the Olympic Village.

RANK XEROX

Rank Xerox: Delivered 40 copying machines to LOOC with a total production capacity of 12 000 copies per minute. Rank Xerox also supplied 600 telefax machines and provided 60 technicians to install and maintain the document processing machines.

Time: Exclusive sponsor of publications to the Olympic Games in 1994 and 1996. Time Inc. had the right to use Olympic emblems and symbols in four publications – Sports Illustrated, Sports Illustrated for Kids, Southern Living and Time International.

Panasonic.

Matsushita: The company's product category in TOP III was AV equipment, audio and video equipment. Panasonic and Technics are two of Matsushita's trademarks in the AV equipment category. Matsushita supplied 837 TVs and 339 video players for use by LOOC at the arenas. The TVs were large units that were placed at venues so that the spectators could keep updated.

Seventeen companies were selected to be "Official Suppliers." The companies were chosen on the basis of the quality of their products and services, and their ability to deliver.

SAS: Delivered air travel and hotel services, as well as arrival and departure assistance. The company also operated travel centres at several of the venues.

Norwegian State Railways (NSB) provided train, bus and travel-agency services. On the most hectic days, a train departed Oslo for Lillehammer every 10 minutes. 14 – 20 extra trains shuttled between Oslo and Lillehammer every day.

Seiko: The official timekeeper. The company provided 200 employees for timekeeping services, and produced the official Olympic watches.

Gjensidige: Supplier of insurance for the Lillehammer Games. Insured the Olympic venues for a value of up to NOK 607 million. The Lillehammer Games were also insured for NOK 50 million against bad weather.

Andersen Consulting: Supplied CASE tools and system development services. Was responsible for the development of Info '94. Info '94 was an electronic information system which was available to the 45,000 accredited persons during the Games.

AS Forma: supplied margarine and salads.

Gilde: supplied all fresh meat to all the Olympic venues and service venues.

Tine: Supplier of dairy products. Supplied Tine milk to all Team '94 members and spectators during the Games.

Electrolux sold and/or leased 6,500 sq. m. of major kitchen equipment which was distributed among 50 eating establishments. The company also delivered household goods to the Olympic and Media villages.

Joh. Johannson: Supplier of Ali and Evergood coffee. 25 tons of coffee were served in three million coffee cups during the Games.

Oppland Energiverk: Supplied the electricity for the Games. A total of 40 GWh were delivered. The power company was also responsible for contingency and security measures to avoid power failures during the Games.

Dyno Industrier: The supplier of dynamite during the construction of Gjøvik Olympic Cavern Hall. Dyno also supplied 23 tons of glue for the wooden beams used in a number of Olympic arenas.

Norsk Tipping: Promoted Lillehammer '94 on their pool tickets. The company was also sponsor for the Paralympics. NOK 287 million of pool money was used for constructing Olympic and Paralympic venues.

Norsk Vinterutstyr: An association of representatives for the Norwegian textile and ready-made clothing industries. Produced about 120,000 garments and delivered "TEAM '94 member" uniforms for the Games.

Nidar: Supplied chocolate bars and other candy products for the Olympic Games. New Energy was the official Olympic candy bar.

Sætre: Supplied crackers and snacks for the Olympic Games. "Sprø Olympiske Ringer" (Crisp Olympic Circles) was one of the products produced by the company under licence.

Norske Skog: produced paper and construction materials. The company supplied 102 tons of paper for the Olympic newspaper.

VG and John Hancock had separate collaboration agreements with LOOC.
